

CURRENCY AND TARIFF REVISION

First Consideration of President-Elect Wilson
for Special Session

MAJORITY FLOOR LEADER

Says Work Should Be Confined to Tariff Question Only—Preparing Inaugural Address.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Tariff revision and a sound banking and currency law comprise President-elect Woodrow Wilson's legislative program for the special session of Congress, which he will call immediately after his inauguration. This information is the first definite information received here as to the president-elect's plans.
It comes through Democratic leaders who have talked with Mr. Wilson within the last few days and is being disseminated in the house and senate for the purpose of having the Democrats generally lined up for the program.

Mr. Wilson states, it is said, that he has been warned that tariff revision will mean more or less of an upset to the business world, and that he believes that to minimize this trouble as much as possible a sound banking and currency law should be enacted.

Oscar W. Underwood, the majority floor leader in the house, and several others of the party chieftains here are at present at odds with Mr. Wilson on this program. They insist that the work of the special session should be confined to the framing and passage of a tariff bill, and argue that that will be enough of a job for the new administration to tackle at the outset.

MAY WAIT UNTIL INAUGURATION TO NAME THE CABINET

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 6.—President-elect Wilson began work today on his inaugural address and plans to finish it in two weeks. Having devoted the first three days of the week entirely to state business, the governor planned to spend the remainder of it in seclusion, outlining the first document which he will present as president of the United States. He indicated that it would be brief.

It is likely that his first message to the extraordinary session of Congress to be convened shortly after the inauguration will be longer, containing specific recommendations for legislation. Just what these will be, Mr.
Wilson will not decide until he gets to Washington.

The governor spent yesterday for the most part with state officials. A delegation from the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey called to obtain his aid in procuring the passage of a bill which would give the governor the right to remove delinquent officials.
The governor said he was in favor of such a measure.

Wilson sees no particular reason why he should announce his cabinet before he is inaugurated, though he indicated that he would try to reach a decision as to selections before that time.

"I remember very well," said the governor, "that President Cleveland did not announce his cabinet until after he had been inaugurated, and there were speculations and guesses until the very day of the announcement."

The governor said he hoped he would not find it necessary to follow that precedent.

Mr. Wilson was urged to appoint as secretary of agriculture, C. S. Barrett of Union City, the president of the National Farmers' Union.

When asked about his attitude toward the Illinois senatorial contest,
the governor replied:

"All I have said is that the Democrats ought to return the primary choice, and in view of the primary vote in Illinois, I felt they were entitled to two Democratic senators."

MEN MAKE CITIES.

Men of the right calibre build cities where they want them.
They build them great and beautiful.
We have men of the right calibre right here in Newark.
You are one of them.
No one but you knows it until you come out and stand up for Newark.
This is not a new work. This is not a venture attempted by a set of men who HOPE to accomplish something good. It is a movement to enhance and enlarge work already under way.
The Newark Board of Trade has been in existence a good many years.
It is through this organization that Newark has been getting on its feet.
It has been getting big, striking, conspicuous results, even as its limited financial support.
As a result of its efforts this organization has brought to Newark new factories, employing hundreds of men.
Equally important, it has kept many factories from moving away to towns offering attractive artificial inducements.
This year several conventions will meet here because of the efforts of the Board of Trade.
It is easy to get results for Newark because she is the best town on earth.
In order to keep up and increase this result-producing effort we are requested to join with the men who are unselfishly working to put Newark to the front.

FREMONT MAN CONTRADICTS TESTIMONY OF EX-SENATORS IN BOND-DEAN BRIBERY TRIAL

Columbus, Feb. 6.—Taking the stand in his own behalf in the so-called legislative bribery, former Mayor Charles A. Bond denied categorically every assertion that was made by former Senators Atwell and Drake when they testified. He corroborated the testimony of Worst at the hotel luncheon.
Columbus, O., Feb. 6.—Contradicting the testimony of former Senators John C. Drake of Erie county and W. L. Atwell of Licking county, the prosecuting witnesses in the Bond-Dean bribery trial, Albert Bauman, Fremont oil man, testified today that he was present at the entire meeting of Senators Drake and Atwell, former Mayor Bond and Senator Dean in a local hotel and that not a word was said regarding bribery. He said that no person left the table during the meeting, thus contradicting the story of Drake and Atwell that Drake and Dean had left the table, leaving Bond and Atwell to talk over the bribery. It is expected that Drake and Atwell will be called to the stand by the state, to testify that Bauman was not at the table Jan. 15, 1908, when the discussion is alleged to have taken place.

WOULD CLEAR THE DARDANELLE STRAITS FOR GREEK WARSHIPS; TROOPS MARCH FOR GALLIOLI

Sofia, Feb. 6.—The main object of the Bulgarian armies, apart from the reduction of Adrianople, was disclosed in dispatches given out today. The plan is to reach the Dardanelle Straits and clear them for the passage of the Greek fleet in the Sea of Marmora. Then the Greeks will attack Constantinople directly from the sea.
From the reports of the fighting to the north of the peninsula of Gallipoli, it can be seen that one of the columns of King Ferdinand's troops is marching straight for the city of Gallipoli. It has not yet come into contact with a large force of Turkish troops, which is said to number 20,000.

Military experts believe these troops should be able to offer a strenuous resistance to the Bulgarian advance from the north. The guns of the Dardanelle fort can be trained toward the land side.

General Savoff, commander of the Bulgarian forces, has addressed an order to the army declaring that the action against the inspectors is an internal affair.

Green Bill

COX MEETS OBJECTIONS

It is Conceded However That Two Amendments
Will Be Passed By Legislature.

Columbus, Feb. 6.—As governor, I have ceased to be an employer or a representative of labor. I represent you and the general public and at this moment, talking in the shops and factories, in the making of a bill for both.

With this assertion, Governor Cox yesterday, in the executive offices, faced a delegation of 100 employers and, one after another, met each objection advanced by them to certain features of the Green workmen's compensation act. It is not fair that the man in the shop shall bear the risks of the occupation, asserted the governor.

"We are attempting to make a law so that no insurance company can force settlement for an injury through starvation," said the governor, in giving his reasons for wanting a compulsory law.

In meeting the objection to the "willful act" clause Governor Cox told them that they need have no fear, as the attorney general has rendered an opinion that the willful act must amount to manslaughter.

Delegations were present from Newark, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Youngstown, Canton, Zanesville, Springfield and East Liverpool.

One amendment probably will replace the compulsory contribution to the state insurance fund by allowing the employer to pay the injured workman directly an amount fixed by the state liability board of awards. This method would allow liability companies to compete with the state.

This method would give employers a chance to continue present welfare plans in part.

The other amendment probably will be designed to further strengthen the safeguard to be thrown about the employer in the provision which gives the employee the right to sue by reason of the willful act of the employer or any of his agents. Employers insist that the reference to agents be eliminated, as the employer may order his agents to install proper safeguards, but the agent may not comply with his orders.

In contrast to demands made at other hearings, employers practically agreed unanimously in favor of the compulsory clause. All, however, objected to making the state the only insurance agent. They asked for compensation between the state and liability companies.

One objection raised was to the liability of the employer, even though he has contributed to the state fund, to suits through willful acts of himself or his agents.

Some of those speaking in opposition to the bill were W. B. Stewart of Cleveland, C. A. Hirsch, president of the Ohio Men's Club, Cincinnati; Robert F. Frazier, Cincinnati; John C. Frazier, Canton; James P. Wilson, Youngstown; C. S. Roberts, Youngstown; Ralph A. Lynch, Canton; J. C. Brooks, East Liverpool; Mr. Staehle of Springfield and W. P. Rogers, dean of the Cincinnati Law School.

Those speaking in favor of the bill were William H. Napier, dean of the law school of the University of Cincinnati; E. Todd of the Cincinnati Law School; and others.

E. F. BOCKWELL.
In 1896, when Bryan was defeated by McKinley, E. F. Bockwell, a Kansas bryan man, vowed that his hair would remain uncut until a Democratic president had taken the oath of office. As is shown by the photograph, Mr. Bockwell has kept his vow. The barbers at Washington are seeking the honor of cutting this luxuriant growth of seventeen years, for after witnessing the Wilson inaugural Bockwell will hasten to a tonsorial parlor, and his Lady Godiva tresses will be made a memory.

REP. FULTON'S PROBING RESOLUTION PASSED BY HOUSE---BILLS REPORTED

Now such prison-ers are sentenced to death unless the jury recommends mercy.

Representative Cooper's white slave bill was also reported out. The bill makes it easier to convict white slave traffickers.

Police chiefs and hardware dealers appeared before the committee and united their protests against the anti-gun resolution introduced by Representative Fulton of Franklin county. They charged that the bill would prohibit the carrying of weapons, whether they were concealed or not. A compromise bill will be reported to the committee tonight.

Introduction of the Fulton resolution followed the introduction of a similar resolution several days ago by Representative Jenkins of Madison county, a Republican. The Jenkins resolution provided that the investigation committee be made non-partisan. Democratic members of the house sidetracked his resolution by introducing the introduction of the Fulton measure.

Columbus, Feb. 6.—Members of the House Judiciary committee today voted to report out favorably the Torrens and system bill, introduced by Representative Reid of Franklin county. The bill provides for a system of registering land titles.

For Tuberculosis Which

All Over the World

VISITS DR. FRIEDMANN

Deluged With Letters and Cablegrams from American Physicians—Advises That Criticism Be Withheld.

The following letter from Dr. Carl Otto Stutz, who is taking the Friedmann tubercular treatment at Berlin, is furnished the Advocate through the courtesy of Prof. H. E. Stutz, brother of the doctor and director of the Elk minstrel:

Berlin, Germany, Jan. 24.—I arrived in Berlin on Jan. 14 and took up quarters at Hotel I Ranges, Koch Strasse, in the central part of the city.

Last week I visited the great tubercular specialist, Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, who holds his clinics on Luetzow strasse. I had quite a while to wait before I could have an interview with him. When my card was presented I was invited into his private office.

Dr. Friedmann is a man of strong magnetic personality, genial and kind, though reserved. He is hard to approach at first, but after he becomes acquainted is very pleasant and talkative.

While in his office he showed me his mail delivered to him that morning. There were, I should judge, about 100 letters and five cablegrams from American physicians.

Three American physicians called on him the day before. He will give any physician an interview, but that is all. If they can gain anything by standing around and observing and talking to his patients, they can do so. He simply has not the time to interview physicians, and they are here from all parts of the globe.

Dr. Shilling of Grant Hospital, at Columbus, O., had made an examination of my spumum and reported tubercle bacilli. But with proper care and treatment I improved. Dr. Friedmann looked this report over and he and his assistant gave me a thorough examination, first using Koch's tuberculin test, which showed tubercle bacilli. He then sent me to the Röntgen laboratory to have a skiagraph (X-ray picture) made.

He found my left lung affected and he gave me my first treatment, an injection of his serum. I am expected to report every two or three days. On other days I attend clinics at Charity and Fuerling Krankenhaus (hospital), so my time is well taken up.

I meet and talk to patients from London, America, Russia, South Africa and all parts of Germany. I also meet E. G. Yates from Denver, Colo., who is here for treatment.

It seems that Dr. Friedmann is considered a fraud by many physicians. I suppose for the reason that he does not give his serum to them. I don't think he will until he is convinced it is all right and can be used safely by other doctors. He is not trying to dispose of his cure, for which many physicians are waiting and willing to pay any price, but is working day and night in his laboratory and clinics to prove his claim valid. Then, I believe, as he stated, he will give it to the world free.

There have been so many false claims to tubercular cures that the scientific world is in the mental attitude of discounting in advance any new claims.

It is equally true, however, that Dr. Friedmann has convinced many here of the value of his serum. He has been in Berlin for several years and has a large number of patients.

There is much excitement among physicians who have personally observed his tubercular cures. Dr. Friedmann has a large number of patients.

On the other hand, several physicians of standing have expressed their belief that this serum is a doctor's dream.

Dr. Friedmann has a large number of patients.

Dr. Friedmann has a large number of patients.

Dr. Friedmann has a large number of patients.

YOUR APPEARANCE SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

It is a duty of every one to look their very best. Putting the best part forward is not only pleasing, it is good business. Your face and its amount is a great deal to do with the way you are seen, but not everything. Almost as much depends on how you spend your money. If you buy as the impulse strikes you it is a certainty that you will not always get full value. Your buying should be done with thought. You can gain for a few moments' time each day. It takes no longer than that to go through the advertisements of the merchants of this city, the best of whom advise in THE ADVOCATE. Suffered Twenty-One Years --- Finally Found Relief

Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in my side, I finally found relief in the Swamp-Root. The physicians called "Mother's Pain" and infections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hope of being cured. A friend advised me to try four Swamp-Root and I once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new woman. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several smaller ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking my Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE,
Avoyleville, Pa.
Personally appeared before me this 15th day of July, 1911, Mrs. Joseph Constance, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

By O. Terrence.

"TIN-CAN" HEAD OF FRENCH ROYAL HOUSE IS 44 TODAY.

"Tin-can" is not a dignified nickname for the head of a royal house, but it is the appellation bestowed by the French people upon Duke Louis Philippe Robert de Orleans, chief of the Bourbon-Orleans clan, who is today celebrating his forty-fourth birthday. Louis Philippe is a royal pretender, Victor Napoleon, a popularly known descendant of the first emperor, named a traitor after the imperial descendant of the house of Bonaparte. The Duke of Orleans was dubbed "Tin-can" (Gamelin) when he applied for admission to the French army as a private, "Gamelin" being the name of the tin in which the rations of soldiers are packed. Nothing so thoroughly proves the triumph of republicanism in France as the almost universal application of such facetious nicknames to would-be monarchs.

It is to the credit of the Duke that he realizes the utter hopelessness of his cause, and in this he shows greater intelligence than Prince "Gamelin," whose frequent proclamations to "his people" would be pitiful if they were not so ludicrous. The Duke of Orleans was born at York House, Twickenham, England, on February 1, 1869, and was the eldest son of the late Comte de Paris. He was educated at the Municipal College in England and the College Stanislas in France. Commissioned in the famous English regiment, the Somerset Rifles, he spent two years in India upon returning to Europe he entered the Swiss army school of Musketry. On the day that he became of age he set out for Paris and went to a recruiting office, where he asked to be permitted to enlist in the army. At that time the republicans still feared the bogaboo of royalty, and the Duke

OLDEST BELL IN AMERICA WAS GIFT OF QUEEN ANNE
Anne, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, who was born 249 years ago today, was the giver of the first bell in America. This bell was recently unearthed underneath a stage in the guild hall of Trinity church at Newport, R. I. It is three feet high and an arrow and inscription shows it to have been the present of Queen Anne. It bears the date of 1702, which was the year in which Anne ascended to the throne, following the death of William. Experts declare that it is undoubtedly the oldest bell in America, or at least in the northern continent. It is half a century older than Philadelphia's famous Liberty bell, which was cast in 1777. This was not the only bell given to the New York church by Queen Anne, but the other was melted years ago and with other material was cast into the large bell which is now in the tower of the church.

The 249th anniversary of Anne's birth will be celebrated a year from today, while the bicentenary of the birth will fall on Aug. 1 of next year. She was the second daughter of James II. While her father and mother joined the Church of Rome, Anne was reared as a Protestant. In her 24th year she married, Prince George, brother of the king of Denmark. Anne was 18 when she became queen. Her reign of a little more than a decade was marked with events of great importance for the British empire. She was the last monarch to reign over all Britain and her dominions united with one of the greatest empires in the history of British monarchy.

"BIG TIM" ON THE BOATWAY
For years the sixth of February has been "Shoe Day" on the Bowery. New York's famous east side, then a slum, was the headquarters of the "Big Tim" Sullivan, a famous politician, congressman and political boss. Today the Bowery is a place of beauty and civilization, a place of business and pleasure, and there is no longer a "Big Tim" on the Bowery. The history of the Bowery is a story of the struggle of the poor against the rich, and the struggle of the poor against the rich.

In the days when the pleasure-loving Tammany leader was down at the heels, with no thought of ever becoming a wealthy theatrical magnate and political power, his teacher made him a present of a pair of shoes. The kindness was not forgotten, and for many years he has commemorated it on the sixth day of February by a distribution of shoes and stockings to all the needy of the Bowery. A year ago today "Big Tim" Sullivan Association, the line of applicants for participation in Big Tim's bounty stretched for blocks. Shoe Day has become as much of an institution in New York as the bread line.

Down and out, the temporarily unemployed, professional hoozers, all the denizens of society, profited by Sullivan's generosity and no questions were asked. The annual distribution cost $15,000. The political methods of Big Tim were viewed with suspicion by many good people, but his benevolent deed won the approval of all. Thus it is that sorrow reigns today along the Bowery, sorrow for the sad fate of Big Tim.

The only way you can make enemies of some people is by calling a snake a snake.

tubercular bacilli. It is natural that men of science will not accept this cure as final, until it has met the most rigorous tests.

I asked the doctor about the percentage of cases he cured, and he said, "All cases where the disease has not advanced too far." Just where he draws the line I do not know.

I visit Dr. Friedman every other day and talk with many of his patients, and find in every case improvement. Night sweats disappear, cough and expectoration diminished, fever leaves them, and in every way they are improved.

The serum that was injected in me had good results, and I hope to gain in weight, though I suppose I will lose in the trip home, as I was very sick coming over.

This morning I again visited Dr. Friedman. While there I met a physician from Pittsburgh, who wanted to purchase some of the serum to take back for his wife, but Dr. Friedman refuses to give it to any physician.

The Pittsburgh doctor was very much disgusted and told me he would find out nothing coming over here and would return to America in a few days. It seems physicians coming here expect the doctor to cure everything, but they are disappointed and become disgusted and denounce him as a fraud when he refuses, but he has not the time to do that.

I called at the headquarters of the Anglo-American Association and found several American physicians in charge. I could see the American flag in the window before I reached the place. It made me feel good.

I had several hours' talk with the physicians there. I inquired about Dr. Friedman and his cure and was surprised they knew nothing of it, only what they had heard, but they investigated the matter and they answered in the negative.

They said they did not think they could get in if they did go to see him. I told them I had several interviews with him and found him very courteous. They were very much surprised and wondered how I got such an interview. They talked very much about Dr. Friedman. He is universally respected and respected among the people.

Several physicians of America had addressed letters to these headquarters asking for information about the cure, and the doctor said they never answered these letters, as they knew nothing about it. However, I have left them were more interested. I asked me to call at one of their meetings and give them a talk on the subject.

what I knew of the cure, which I promised to do at the next meeting. They also decided they would call on Dr. Friedman. If I get in possession of facts that the cure is a failure, it is sure I will denounce it publicly. Otherwise, I will not condemn it.

I also had interviews with Karl H. Von Niegand and William C. Cheppard, correspondents of the New York Sun and Cleveland Press. Both gentlemen told me they would give to America through the press true facts, as they are making a thorough investigation, interviewing physicians and patients of Dr. Friedman.

A few days ago United States Consul General Thakara made public a brief report on the cure. Mr. Thakara was instructed to investigate the discovery by the state department, but took the stand that he was not qualified to make a scientific investigation of such an important nature, and recommended that the United States send a medical expert. The true facts will not be known until that is done. There is too much criticism and antagonism among the medical profession.

I received a card from Blasius Wiedmann, who lives in Freiburg, in southern Germany, asking me to visit him. I expect to do so the latter part of February.

DR. OTTO CARL STUTZ. The Blasius Wiedmann referred to by Dr. Stutz is a former well known Newark citizen, who for a number of years conducted a restaurant at the corner of Fourth and Railroad streets and who will be remembered by many of the older residents. He retired from active business two years ago, and moved back to his old home in Germany, where he expects to spend the remainder of his days.

CHAPTER XVI.

Mahomed Rides Alone.

It was as if the stillness of the desert itself had encompassed the two men. In their ears the sither of the brittle palm-leaves against one another and the crackle of the fire were no longer sounds. They stared at Fortune with that speechless wonder of men who had come unexpectedly upon a wraith. What with the faint glow of the fire upon one side of her and the pallor of moonshine upon the other, she did indeed resemble man's conception of the spiritual.

Ryanne was first to pull himself together.

"Fortune, I am sorry; God knows I am. I'd have cut out my tongue rather than have hurt you. I thought you were asleep in the tent."

"Is it true?"

"Yes," Ryanne looked away.

"I had not quite expected this; the daughter of a thief."

"Oh, come now; don't look at it that way. Smuggling is altogether a different thing," protested Ryanne. (Women were uncertain; here she was, apparently the least agitated of the three.) "Why, hundreds of men and women who regularly go to church, think nothing of beating Uncle Sam out of a few dollars. Here's Jones, for instance; he would have tried to smuggle in that rug. Isn't that right, Jones?"

"Of course!" cried George eagerly, though scarcely knowing what he said. "I'd have done it."

"And you wouldn't call Percival a thief," with a forced laugh. "It's like this, Fortune. Uncle Sam wants altogether too much take-off. He doesn't give us a square deal; and so we even up the matter by trying to beat him. Scrupulous? Rot!"

"It is stealing," with quiet conviction.

"It isn't, either. Listen to me. Suppose I purchase a pearl necklace in Rome, and pay five thousand for it. Uncle Sam will boost up the value more than one-half. And what for? To protect infant industries? Bally rot! We don't make pearls in the States; our orsters aren't educated up to it." His flippancy found no response in her. "Well, suppose I get that necklace through the customs without paying the duty. I make twenty-five hundred or so. And nobody is hurt. That's all your mother does."

"It is stealing," she reiterated.

How wan she looked! thought George.

"How can you make that stealing?" Ryanne was provoked.

"The law puts a duty upon such things; if you do not pay it, you steal. Oh, Fortune, don't waste your time in specious arguments." She made a gesture, weariness personified. "It is stealing; all the arguments in the world can't change it into anything else. And how about my uncle who fleeces the lambs at cards, and how about my mother who knows and permits it?"

Ryanne had no plausible argument to offer against these queries.

"Is not my uncle a thief, and is not my mother an abettor? I do not know of anything so vile." Her figure grew less erect. To George's eyes, dimmed by the reflecting misery in hers, she drooped, as a flower exposed to sudden cold. "I think the thief in the night much honest than one who cheats at cards. A card-sharp; did you not call it that? Don't lie, Fortune; it will only make me sad."

"I shan't lie any more, Fortune. All that you believe is true; and I would to God that it were otherwise. And I've been a partner in many of their exploits. But not at cards, Fortune; not at cards. I'm not that kind of a cheat."

"Thank you. I should have known some time, and perhaps only half a truth. Now I know all there is to know." She held her hands out before her and studied them. "I shall never go back."

"Good Lord! Fortune, you must. You'd be as helpless as a babe. What could you do without money and comfort?"

"I can become a clerk in a shop. It will be honest. Bread at Mentone would choke me," and she choked a little then as she spoke.

"My dear Fortune," said Ryanne, calling into life that persuasive sweetness which upon occasions he could put into his tones, "have you ever thought how beautiful you are? No, I don't derive you have. Some ancestor of your father's has been reincarnated in you. You are without vanity and dishonesty; and I have found that these usually go together. Well, at Mentone you had a little experience with men. You were under protection then; protection it was of a sort. If you go out into the world alone, there will be no protection; and you will find that men are wolves generally, and that the sport of the

Mr. You worked in your father's bank. You know something about figures. I own two large fruit-farms in California. What do you say to a hundred and fifty a month to start with, and begin life over again?"

Ryanne got up and restlessly paced. Nonchalance had been beaten out of him; the mercurial humor which had once been so pleasant to excite, which had once given him a foothold in such moments, was gone. He had only one feeling, a keen, biting, bitter shame. At length he stopped in front of George, who smiled and looked up expectantly.

"Jones, when you stick your finger into water and withdraw it, what happens? Nothing. Well, the man who gives me a benefit is sticking his finger into water. I'm just as unstable. How many promises have I made and broken! I mean, promises to myself. I don't know. This moment I swear to be good, and along comes a pack of cards or a bottle of wine, and back I slip. Would it be worth while to trust a man so damned weak as that? Look at me. I am six-foot two, normally a hundred and eighty pounds, no fat. I am as sound as a cocoon. There isn't a boxer in the States I'm afraid of. I can ride, shoot, fence, fight; there isn't a game I can't take a creditable hand in. So much for that. There's the other side. Morally, I'm putty. When it's soft you can mold it any which way; when it's hard, it crumbles. Will you trust a man like that?"

"Yes. Out there you'll be away from temptation."

"Perhaps. Well, I accept. And if one day I'm missing, think kindly of the poor devil of an outcast who wanted to be good and couldn't be. I'm fagged. I'm going to turn in. Good-night."

He picked up his blanket and saddle-bags and made his bed a dozen yards away.

George set his gaze at the fire, now falling in places and showing incandescent holes. A month ago, in the rut of commonplace, moving round in oiled grooves of mediocrity. Bang! like a rocket. Why, never had those liars in the smoke-rooms recounted anything half so wild and strange as this adventure. Snugglers, card-sharps, an ancient rug, a caravan in the desert! He turned his head and looked long and earnestly at the little tent. Love, too; love that had put into his diffident heart the thrill and courage of a Bayard. Love! He saw her again as she stepped down from the carriage; in the dining-room at his side, leaning over the parapet; ineffably sweet, hauntingly sad. Would she accept the refuge he had offered? He knew that old Mortimer would take her without question. Would she accept the shelter of that kindly roof? She must! If she refused and went her own way into the world, he would lose her for ever. She must accept! He would plead with all the eloquence of his soul, for his own happiness, and mayhap hers. He rose, faced the tent, and, with a gesture not unlike that of the pagan in prayer, registered a vow that never should she want for protection, never should she want for the comforts of life. How he was going to keep such a vow was a question that did not enter his head. Somehow he was going to accomplish the feat.

What mattered the ragged beard upon his face, the ragged clothes upon his body, the tattered cloths upon his feet, the grotesque attitude and ensemble? The Lord of Life saw into his heart and understood. And who might say with what joy Pandora gazed upon her work, knowing as she did what still remained within her casket?

From these heights, good occasionally for any man's soul, George came down abruptly and humanly to the prosaic question of where would he make his bed that night? To lie down at the north side of the fire meant a chill in the morning; the south side, the intermittent, acid breath of the fire itself; so he threw down his blanket and bags east of the fire, wrapped himself up, and sank into slumber, light but dreamless.

What was that? He sat up, alert, straining his ears. How long had he been asleep? An hour by his watch. What had awakened him? Not a sound anywhere, yet something had startled him out of his sleep. He glanced over the camp. That bundle was Ryanne. He waited. Not a movement there. No sign of life among the camel-boys; and the flaps of the two tents were closed. Bah! Nerves, probably; and he would have lain down again had his gaze not roved out toward the desert. Something moved out there, upon the misty, moonlit space. He shaded his eyes from the fire, now but a heap of glowing embers. He got up, and shiver after shiver wrinkled his spine. Oh, no; it could not be a dream; he was awake. It was a living thing, that long, bobbing camel-train, coming directly toward the oasis, no doubt attracted by the firelight. Fascinated, incapable of movement, he watched the approach. Three white dots; and these grew and grew and at length became pith-helmets! Pith-helmets! Who but white men were pith-helmets in the desert? White men! The temporary paralysis left him. Crouching, he ran over to Ryanne and shook him.

But George smothered the question with his hand. "Hush! For God's sake, make no noise! Get up and stand guard over Fortune's tent. There's a caravan outside, and I'm going out to meet it. Ryanne, Ryanne, there's a white man out there!"

George ran as fast as he could toward the incoming caravan. He met it two or three hundred yards away. The broken line of camels bobbed up and down slowly.

"Are you white men?" he called.

"Yes," said a deep, resonant voice.

"And stop where you are; there's no hurry."

"Thank God!" cried George, at the verge of a breakdown.

"What the devil . . . Flanagan, here's a white man in a dress-suit! God save us!" The speaker laughed.

"Yes, a white man; and there's a white woman in the camp back there, a white woman! Great God, don't you understand? A white woman!" George clutched the man by the foot desperately. "A white woman!"

The man kicked George's hand away and slouched at his camel. "Flanagan, and you, Williams, get your guns in shape. This doesn't look good to me, twenty miles from the main gamelish. I told you it was odd, that fire. Live-ly, now!"

George ran after them, staggering. Twice he fell headlong. But he laughed as he got up; and it wasn't exactly human laughter, either. When he reached camp he saw Mahomed and the three strangers, the latter with their rifles held menacingly. Fortune stood before the flap of her tent, bewildered at the turn in their affairs. Behind the leader of the new-comers was Ryanne, and he was talking rapidly.

"Well," the leader demanded of Mahomed, "what have you got to say for yourself?"

"Nothing!"

"Take care! It wouldn't come hard to put a bullet into your ugly hide. You can't abduct white women these days, you beggar! Well, what have you to say?"

Mahomed folded his arms; his expression was calm and unafraid. But down in his heart the fires of hell were raging. If only he had brought his rifle from the tent; even a knife; and one mad moment if he died for it! And he had been gentle to the girl; he had withheld the lash from the men; he had not put into action a single plan arranged for their misery and humiliation! Truly his blood had turned to water, and he was worthy of death. The white man, always and ever the white man won in the end. To have come this far, and then to be cheated out of his revenge by chance! Kismet! There was but one thing left for him to do, and he did it. He spoke hurriedly to his head-boy. The boy without hesitation obeyed him. He ran to the racing-camel, applied a kick, flung on the saddle-bags, stuffed dates and dried fish and two water-bottles into them, and waited. Mahomed walked over to the animal and mounted.

"Stop!" The white man leveled his rifle. "Get down from there!"

Mahomed, as if he had not heard, kicked the camel with his heels. The beast lurched to its feet resentfully. Mahomed picked up the guiding-rope which served as a bridle, and struck the camel across the neck.

Click! went the hammer of the rifle, and Mahomed was at that moment very near death. He gave no heed.

"No, no!" cried Fortune, pushing up the barrel. "Let him go. He was kind to me, after his fashion."

Mahomed smiled. He had expected this, and that was why he had gone about the business unconcernedly.

"What do you say?" demanded the stranger of Ryanne.

Ryanne, having no love whatever for Mahomed, shrugged.

"Humph! And you?" to George.

"Oh, let him go."

"All right. Two to one. Off with you, then," to Mahomed. "But wait! What about these beggars of yours? What are you going to do with them?"

"They have been paid. They can go back."

The moment the camel felt the sand under his pads, he struck his gait eastward. And when the mists and shadows crept in behind him and his rider, that was the last any of them ever saw of Mahomed-El-Gebel, keeper of the Holy Yliordes in the Pasha's palace at Bagdad.

"Now, then," said the leader of the strange caravan, "my name is Ackermann, and mine is a carpet-caravan, and down 6667."

"Are you white men?" he called.

"Yes," said a deep, resonant voice.

"And stop where you are; there's no hurry."

"Thank God!" cried George, at the verge of a breakdown.

"All right. Two to one. Off with you, then," to Mahomed. "But wait! What about these beggars of yours? What are you going to do with them?"

"They have been paid. They can go back."

The moment the camel felt the sand under his pads, he struck his gait eastward. And when the mists and shadows crept in behind him and his rider, that was the last any of them ever saw of Mahomed-El-Gebel, keeper of the Holy Yliordes in the Pasha's palace at Bagdad.

"Now, then," said the leader of the strange caravan, "my name is Ackermann, and mine is a carpet-caravan, and down 6667."

"Are you white men?" he called.

"Yes," said a deep, resonant voice.

"And stop where you are; there's no hurry."

the boys who were pressing about. He volleyed some Arabic at them, and they dropped back. "Well, I've heard some strange yarns myself in my time, but this one beats them all. Shangkhaied from Cairo! Humph! If some one had told me this, anywhere else but here, I'd have called him a liar. And you, Mr. Ryanne, went into Bagdad alone and got away with that Yliordes! It must have been the devil's own of a job."

"It was," replied Ryanne laconically. He did not know this man Ackermann; he had never heard of him; but he recognized a born leader of men when he saw him. Gray-haired, lean, bearded, sharp of word, quick of action, rude; he saw in this carpet-hunter the same indomitable qualities of the ivory-seeker. "You did not stop at Bagdad?" he asked, after the swift inventory.

"No. I came direct. I always do," grimly. "Better turn in and sleep; we'll be on the way at dawn, sharp."

"Sleep?" Ryanne laughed.

"Sleep?" echoed George.

Fortune shook her head.

"Well, an hour to let the reaction wear away," said Ackermann. "But you've got to sleep. I'm boss now, and you won't find me an easy one," with a humorous glance at the girl.

"We are all very happy to be housed by you," she said.

"Twenty days," Ackermann mused. "You're a plucky young woman. No hysterics?"

"Not even a sigh of discontent," put in George. "If it hadn't been for her pluck, we'd have gone to pieces just from worry. Are you Henry Ackermann, of the Oriental Company in Smyrna?"

"Yes; why?"

"I'm George P. A. Jones, of Mortimer & Jones, New York. I've heard of you; and God bless you for this night's work!"

"Mortimer & Jones? You don't say! Well, if this doesn't beat the Dutch! Why, if you're Robert E. Jones' boy, I'll sell you every carpet in the pack at cost." He laughed; and it was laugh good to hear, dry and harsh though it was. "Your dad was a fine gentleman, and one of the best judges of his time. You couldn't fool him a knot. He wrote me when you came into this world of sin and tribulation. Didn't they call you Percival Algernon, or something like that?"

"They did!" And George laughed, too.

"You're a sight. Any one sick? Got a medicine-chest aboard?"

"No, only banged up and discouraged. I say, Mr. Ackermann, got an extra pipe or two and some 'baccy'?"

"Flanagan, see what's in the chest." Shortly Flanagan returned. He had half a dozen fresh corn-cob pipes and a thick bag of tobacco. George and Ryanne lighted up, about as near contentment as two men in their condition could possibly be.

Said Flanagan to Fortune: "Do you chew?"

Fortune looked horrified.

"Oh, I mean gum!" roared Flanagan. "No, Fortune did not possess that dubious accomplishment."

"Mighty handy when you're thirsty," Flanagan advised.

They built up the fire and sat round it cozily. They were all more or less happy, all except Fortune. So long as she had been a captive of Mahomed, she had forced the thought from her mind; but now it came back with a full measure of misery. Never, never would she return to Mentone, not even for the things that were rightfully hers. Where would she go and what would she do? She was without money and the only thing she possessed of value was the Soudanese trinket Ryanne had forced upon her that day in the bazaars. She heard the men talking and laughing, but without sensing. No, she could not accept charity. She must fight out her battle all alone. . . . The child of a thief; for never would her clear mind accept smuggling as other than thieving. . . . Neither could she accept pity; and she stole a glance at George, as he blew clouds of smoke luxuriantly from his mouth and nose, his eyes half closed in ecstasy. How little it took to comfort a man!

Ryanne suddenly lowered his pipe and smote his thigh. "Hell!" he muttered.

"What's up?" asked George.

"I want you to look at me, Percival; I want you to take a good look at this thing I've been carrying round as a head."

"It looks all right," observed George, puzzled.

"Empty as a dried cocoon! I never thought of it till this moment. I wondered why he was in such a hurry to get out. I've let that copper-headed devil get away with that nine hundred pounds!"

PURITY MAN HAS GOOD LUCK AS A FISHERMAN

Brings in Good String of Members of the Finny Tribe—Illness of Pastor Forces Him to Discontinue Meetings.

Purity, Feb. 6.—What sounds like a "fish story" comes from over Polkstalk way, to the effect that John Hunt, one balmy, spring-like day recently sallied forth with full equipment of bait and fishing tackle to a small stream that runs through his farm and there sat himself down to lure the finny tribe. That he was successful is fully proven by his return a few hours later with a fine string of the "speckled beauties," ranging in age from ten inches to two feet. Some people have been skeptical enough to doubt the size of the catch, and some are ill-natured enough to suggest our local fish dealer may have been in the neighborhood that day. Anyhow, John had the fish.

POSTUM

These doctors represent but a fraction of the thousands of physicians who use Postum in place of coffee in their homes and in their practice.

Cases of shaky nerves, irritable hearts, indigestion, biliousness, headache and sleeplessness, due to coffee drinking, are observed in the everyday experience of medical men everywhere.

Following the change from coffee to Postum, the ailing one quickly discovers that the Doctor's advice to "quit coffee and use Postum" was sound.

BOWELS SLUGGISH, STOMACH SOUR, GASSY, UPSET? CASCARETS GREAT!

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means your stomach is full of sour bile—your liver is torpid—your bowels constipated. It isn't your stomach's fault—it isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation.

Try Cascarets; they immediately sweeten the stomach, remove the sour undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning.

10 Cents. Never grips or sickens. "CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP."

AMUSEMENTS

Last Night's Play.
Friday afternoon "Othello" will be the matinee attraction, while at night Shakespeare's tragedy, "Othello," is to be given.

In this piece, Mr. Brown as the Moor, Mr. Crosby as Iago, and Miss Fields as Desdemona are said to be exceptionally fine.

Dr. R. H. Colwell, president of Denison University, with a party of students, and Prof. Strong of the Newark High school, with another party, will attend the "Othello" production.

The Kirk Brown Stock company presented Hall Caine's great play, "The Christian," to a fair-sized matinee audience at the Auditorium on Wednesday afternoon, and the play, which has been acknowledged to be a strong moral force, was well received.

The principal parts of John Storm and Glory Quayle were given precisely as the play was written, and by Kirk Brown and Miss Marguerite Fields, while the entire cast in the minor roles did excellent work. In several cases "doubling" was done all that was required of them in a highly pleasing manner.

In the evening the company gave another excellent performance of "The Wife," which has already been reviewed.

Today is "Typhoon Day" in the theatre, and this great farce play of that name was given by the premiere in Newark at this afternoon's matinee, and will be repeated tonight.

"The Typhoon" is the story of a Japanese in Europe on a secret mission and of his lover, Theresa Hemple, who tries to get his secrets from him. After a heated discussion in Tokoramo's room one night, in which she tells him of her hatred for him, he chokes her to death. When his colleagues hear of the murder, they determine to save him by having one of them denounce himself as the murderer. Hironari denounces himself and after a short trial is sentenced to death. Helena Kerner, another lover of Tokoramo, muddles everything up when she attempts to save him.

After the trial Tokoramo is told that word has come from Japan appointing one of his colleagues leader in his place. Herr Linder, a lover of Theresa Hemple, comes to Tokoramo's apartments and believing that Hironari is not the real murderer, repeatedly tells Tokoramo of the dead girl until his spirit is completely broken. Unable to stand it all and harassed on all sides, Tokoramo dies of a broken heart.

ness of their appeal to our recognition of human interest. Altogether, it may be said that those who like plays which excite the emotions from laughter to eye mistiness, will find just what they want in "Bought and Paid For," which is said to be thoroughly delightful.

The Orpheum.
There was an entire change of program at the Arcade theatre today. The play is a musical farce in one act, entitled "The Silent Partner," and is surely a laughing show. See the funny comedians with their funny sayings, the pretty chorus, with their high class numbers, Miss Nan Sandell, featuring "The Straw Hat," New York's latest song success, and special scenery and electrical effects, all of which goes to make up a big program. Prices remain the same, 10 and 20 cents.

Special ladies' souvenir matinee Friday. Each lady gets a present, and one will be awarded the seven-piece cake set. Don't miss this.

COMING SUNDAY AT THE ORPHEUM

"The Raiders of the Mexican Border," a story of the great Southwest, in three reels of photo-plays. Another big feature in two reels will also be shown, making five reels in all. Music will be furnished by Grace Cranston, Harry Rosebrough and the new orchestra. Special singing of spectacular songs by Miss Jessie La Caumpt of Cincinnati.

Don't miss the big Sunday program.

TALKING PICTURE MAY SOON BE EXHIBITED HERE

Newark people who are fond of the "movies" will soon be given an opportunity to see and hear Thomas A. Edison's latest invention, the kinetograph, or talking pictures, which promises to revolutionize the motion picture industry. Manager Boyce of the Arcade theatre, has filed his application for the exclusive right to exhibit these pictures here, as an added feature to the bill at the vaudeville theatre.

It is claimed that Edison refused an offer of one million dollars for the exclusive rights of the invention, which is now being exhibited in the east. It is thought that the first exhibition will be given here toward the last of February.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. Child, Beatrice, Neb.

The Other Case.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation, but my husband thought I had better write to you and I did so, stating my symptoms. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.

PUNCTUREFIX PREVENTS LEAKS IN AUTO TIRES

Remarkable Solution Invented by a Marion Man Placed on Sale in Newark by Makers.

Exhibiting a 28x3-inch automobile tire, with 55 pounds air pressure, containing 61 punctures made by driving a 10-penny nail directly through the tread, E. T. McSword, of Marion, representing the Original Puncturefix Co., yesterday demonstrated a novel solution which, if it is what its manufacturers represent, will prove a boon to automobile owners.

Mr. McSword closed a contract with J. E. Sigler, garage owner and automobile dealer, to act as exclusive agent for Licking county. The solution is the invention of a Marion man and has been thoroughly tested in that city by a number of automobile owners.

The ingredients of the solution, of course, are secret. It is of a greenish color and about the consistency of cream. It is injected into the inner tube through the valve stem, after the valve has been removed. The "puncturefix" occupies one-twentieth of the air space in the tire, will not freeze about 22 degrees below zero by actual test, and will not injure the rubber.

In demonstrating the efficiency of the solution, Mr. McSword drove a nail into the tire he carried and pulled it out again. There was no escape of air, though the tire carried 55 pounds air pressure. This tire contained 61 such punctures. Mr. McSword claimed that one of the demonstrating tires used by the company contained more than 2000 punctures and still held air. Another tire used for exhibition purposes contains 65 or 70 nails, spikes, etc., within a distance of 14 inches, the spikes and nails bristling from the tread of the tire like the quills of a porcupine. This tire has maintained a 65-pound air pressure for weeks without leakage.

Dozens of automobile owners in Marion have used the solution for several months, among them being George J. Hagmore, formerly with the Pittsburg Grocery Company of this city, and Dr. Rhue, who received the letters from the safe crackers which resulted in the identification of one of the vagabonds as a former Newark man. Both of these men give their unqualified recommendation of the solution after months of use.

An absolute guarantee goes with the solution, backed by the Marion company. Money will be refunded if the solution in any way injures the tires or fails to do all that is claimed for it by the manufacturers. Tires under four inches are treated with the solution at $1.00 per set. All larger tires at $1.50 per set. Motor vehicle tires are treated for $2.50 per set.

REV. BILLY SUNDAY IN ZANESVILLE, 1914

On Feb. 6—W. A. Davis, of Zanesville, Ohio, writes to the Newark Daily Advocate, saying he has tried to get rid of his hemorrhoids for years, but has failed. He says that Zanesville is a very healthy place, and that he has been in the city for many years. He says that he has been in the city for many years, and that he has been in the city for many years. He says that he has been in the city for many years, and that he has been in the city for many years.

COUNTING THE VOTE ON STRIKE

RAILROADS CONCEDE THAT THE FIREMEN ON EASTERN ROADS FAVOR THE STEP.

Statistics as to Comparative Wages Paid Men—Several Promotions Are Announced.

As it is announced that the counting of the strike votes of the 30,000 firemen on the 54 eastern railroads is now proceeding daily, and as the railroads concede the vote favors a strike, with all its attendant difficulties, the companies wish the public to understand the exact situation.

Railroad employees are as well, if not better, paid as labor in other employments.

Railway firemen in 15 states, surrounded by many different conditions of work, have combined to advance demands for increased pay amounting to 35 per cent upon their present total payroll in this section. According to the recent arbitration commission in the engineers' case, the average wages of firemen in the district affected by the present strike vote are $2.88 per day. Ten years ago the average was about $2.05.

The average wages of the firemen who are now threatening to strike have thus been increased more than 35 per cent in the past ten years.

The present demand is for 35 per cent more at one step. This would represent a total increase of 70 per cent in 10 or 11 years.

Wages of other forms of railway labor have also been increasing in ascending ratio.

Railroad managers are willing and eager to pay all classes of employees as high wages as conditions will permit. It is indeed recognized that the firemen at this moment deserve special consideration.

But, the wages of railroad labor can only be paid out of funds received by the railroads for services performed. If those wages absorb a constantly increasing proportion of receipts from this sole source of revenue, it is obvious that the public must pay the bill in the end.

The question the public has to answer is: How long shall this process of increase be allowed to continue?

Promotion Announced.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad system has extended its traffic representation in the southeast, and announcement is made of the appointment of J. S. McKinnon as traveling agent, with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., effective Feb. 1. Mr. McKinnon will report to W. N. Mitchell, commercial freight agent Atlanta, and will travel in the territory under Mr. Mitchell's jurisdiction, which includes Georgia, Florida, Alabama and South Carolina. Mr. McKinnon is promoted to traveling freight agent from his position of secretary to Mr. Mitchell.

Westerman Now Chief Clerk.

Word has been received in Newark of the promotion of F. N. Westerman, brother of Harry J. Westerman, cartoonist of the Ohio State Journal, to the position of chief clerk of the passenger department of the Southern railroad, with headquarters at Washington, D. C. Mr. Westerman began his railroad experience in Columbus as a clerk in the passenger department of the Hocking Valley railroad.

Mr. Westerman has many friends in Newark, especially among the railroad men.

RAILROAD MAN FALLS ON FENCE; IS BADLY HURT

C. L. Davis of Bolin's court, fell from a yard engine Thursday morning about six o'clock and sustained serious injuries to his back. Davis was riding on the running board of the engine and when it reached a point between First and Second Sts. he was jolted from his position, landing against the fence. He was removed to his home in the ambulance of Bazler & Bradley, where Dr. B. F. Barnes attended him. He suffered much pain following the accident, but it is believed that he will soon be able to resume his duties.

FIRST THINGS

LONG-DISTANCE TELEPHONE. The first attempt to carry on a telephone conversation between persons in New York and Chicago was made 28 years ago today. A few words were heard, when the connection ceased and could not be re-established. On the same day satisfactory messages passed between New York and Meadville, Pa., a distance of 509 miles. The first long-distance telephone line in England was put in operation 33 years ago between Liverpool and Manchester, the mayors of those two cities talking with each other. Twenty years ago tomorrow, on Feb. 7, 1893, a commercial long-distance telephone line was opened between New York and Boston. Engineers of the telephone company now predict that before the end of this year it will be possible to carry on a telephone conversation between New York and San Francisco. London is now connected by telephone with Paris and other continental cities. New York now has more telephones than any other city in the world, 441,120; Chicago comes second with 278,491; London third with 218,246; Boston fourth with 140,133; Berlin fifth with 133,847, and Philadelphia sixth with 133,398. Paris, St. Louis, Hamburg, Vienna and Buenos Ayres follow in the order given.

LIKE FINDING MONEY.

W. A. Erman & Son Offer Popular Medicine at Half-Price.

W. A. Erman & Son, the popular druggists, are making an offer that is just like finding money, for they are selling a regular 50-cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price. In addition to this large discount, they agree to return the money to any purchaser who returns the specific, do not return it. It is quite unusual to be able to buy fifty-cent pieces for a quarter, but that is what this offer really means, for it is only recently through the solicitation of Druggists' W. A. Erman & Son that this medicine could be bought for less than 50 cents. They urged the proprietors to allow them to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified their good judgment, for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, spots before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr. Howard's specific will cure all these troubles. But if we any chance it should not, W. A. Erman & Son will return your money.

Now is the time to get a suit and overcoat. All winter suits and overcoats are going at marked low prices at ROE EMERSON'S, Corner Third and Main.
